

Waterman's World

Last Updated Friday, 25 May 2007

Swimming along the surface, your equipment seems heavy and constricting. The waves and currents push you around. The sun beats down heating you beyond comfort. Then it is time to dive.

Your partner signals his readiness and you release the air from your vest. Slowly sinking, you feel your body and equipment become weightless. Your limbs become agile. You are entering a new world and the excitement fills your heart and mind. You are entering... Waterman's World.
